According to Jeff Studebaker, the group's chairman, a subcommittee has been tasked with investigating and developing a plan for closing the corporation permanently.

He said the JCDIC has played a vital role in local economic development by assisting with the recruitment and retention of several major projects but that with Mayor Bob Courtney's 2020

Resident, dog evacuate home garage fire safely

BY MARK CAMPBELL

A Madison hilltop resident and her dog escaped injury shortly before daylight Wednesday when they were forced to evacuate their home due to a garage fire in the 1700 block of Orchard Street.

A neighbor said he was awakened by his own dog barking at about 5:20 a.m. and when he looked outside flames were shooting out of the garage of the home. By the time he called 911, firefighters were already on their way and the home owner, listed as Jane Thacker, escaped with her dog without injury.

Firefighters arrived soon after and brought the blaze under control in about 20 minutes. Madison Fire Chief Bill Devries said the fire was reported as a vehicle fire in an attached garage an first arriving units reported a working structure fire in the garage area. The main fire damage was contained to the garage area.

The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Madison Fire Department.

TAYLOR ADDS HIS NAME TO LIVE MUSIC SCENE

Charlie Rohlfing

Daniel Taylor performs.

Another talented troubadour has joined the live music scene. Daniel Taylor, who goes by the stage name Troubadour D, moved to Madison about a year ago to be with his girlfriend (local resident Tasha Lanettee) and to start playing out in Madison's many vibrant live music venues.

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

Daniel is originally from Ft. Collins, Colorado. It seems Tasha is the sister of a best friend, but there is also a connection to locals Danny and Bri Adams (who are both also musicians) and Will Warren and all of them playing together in a church in Clovis, New Mexico and … you get the idea. Against all odds, he ends up in our little music mecca.

"I also came to Madison for Ribberfest a few times before I moved here. My dad is a huge Michael Kelsey fan and we came to the festival to see him play." adds Daniel. "Tasha told me about the music scene here and it seemed like the perfect place to launch my music career.

"My story is a bit different than a lot of younger musicians who come out very young. I'm actually 32 years old, and I've been sitting on the craft, writing songs and developing my personal style. I wanted to start things out right.

"I've also come to realize that to be successful, so much is dependent on the business of music, the relationships and communication. I like to say it's about 10% playing and 90% the other stuff. So I've spent a lot of time getting that part right, too.

"So about a year ago I decided I was ready. Time to come out from under my shell and start sharing my music. And from what Tasha was telling me, there's no better place for musicians than right here in Madison. But wow, as it turns out, it was not the best year to start.

"As everybody knows, COVID has kind of put a wet blanket on the whole music industry, not just in Madison but everywhere. Actually, things may be a little better here in Madison. Several

Broken-down press delays Saturday delivery

Last Saturday's edition of The Madison Courier has been included with today's newspaper.

A broken part on our printing presses at the Paxton Media Group's Central Print Hub in Owensboro, Ky., last week made it impossible for The Madison Courier and several other Paxton newspapers to be printed in time for distribution in Saturday's mail.

The highly specialized part for the press took several days to receive and install so Tuesday's paper was printed at a different location that did not have the capacity to print both

COVID-19 vaccinations expand to 70 and older

JCHD to get increase in vaccine next week

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The COVID-19 vaccine, previously available locally only to first reponders, medical professionals and Jefferson County residents over the age of 80, is now available to those age 70 and over.

Jefferson County Health Department followed a state directive Wednesday and issued a statement that the vaccination program has been expanded to include the younger age group. However, vaccine supply remains limited and all vaccinations are still by appointment only at the health department located at 715 Green Road in Madison.

Tammy Monroe, JCHD administrator, told member of the Jefferson County Council Tuesday night that she was anticipating an expansion of the vaccination program on Wednesday and that other expansions will be phased in as supply allows and as various demographic groups have complerted vaccination.

The vaccines became available to Indiana residents 80 and older last Friday following the initial rollout of doses for Indiana health care workers and nursing home residents and staffers in December. Nearly 86,000 Hoosiers in that age group had scheduled appointments to receive the free COVID-19 vaccines as of 4 p.m. Sunday, according to the state health department.

Health officials said last week that they planned to start offering vaccinations in the coming weeks next to those 70 and older and then 60 and older.

Monroe said distribution of the vaccine so far has gone "super, super well" ... "really smooth" as JCHD was allotted about 100 doses per week. She said the number of doses the department can inject next week is scheduled to increase to 500 as well as for the two weeks after that but some of those doses will go to residents who were earlier vaccinated because the shot must be delivered in two doses three weeks apart and the first groups to receive the shot will be coming due for their final injections.

She said so far there has been plenty of staff and volunteers to handle the injections but as more vaccine arrives weekly she may need to seek more health care volunteers or hire temporary employees to assist with the innoculations but that the state has allocated money to help with the process.

Asked if there have been any adverse reactions to the vaccinations so far, Monroe said there have not but that JCHD has all the required emergency medication needed for such a reaction and the staff is trained and ready to administer that medication in the event of a negative outcome.

To register for a COVID-19 vaccination appointment, county residents should visit www.ourshot.in.gov or call 2-1-1 and make sure to select the vaccine link and not the testing link. No walk-ins will be available at this time.

Meanwhile, Jefferson County had 19 new COVID-19 cases through Tuesday with a total of 2,406 since the pandemic began. There were no new deaths and the death toll stood at 38.

All but 20 of Indiana's 96 counties remained in the most critical "red" zone — including every county south of Indianapolis except for Bartholomew, Decatur, Floyd, Monroe, Perry and Vigo counties — in terms of community infection.

"And I've met some great people who have been super encouraging, like Drew Eades, Dave Butler and Gary Applegate. And now Jerry Wade is giving me a chance to open for Keith Scott, which I really appreciate. I'm a big fan of Keith from way back."

(I'll jump in at this point and report on Daniel's first show at Mad Paddle, which took place last Friday, Jan. 8. Daniel delivered a tight opening set featuring original and cover tunes, and then sat in and jammed with the formidable Keith Scott, showing great style and enthusiasm. All and all an excellent first outing. He's a talented performer you'll want to see for yourself.)

"I have about an hour's worth of original songs," Danny continues, "and several hours of classic and eclectic cover songs. I like to choose covers that are a little off the beaten path, but still familiar. It's all part of being a troubadour, introducing people, especially the younger generation, to fresh music they may not normally listen to.

"At the moment I'm working with Joe Breek renovating the old Courtyard restaurant, and I'll be the cook there when it opens as the Rivertown Grill. But I'm also going up to Indy and recording an album at Postal Recording Studio. Lots going on and lots to look forward to. I think 2021 is going to be my year!"

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

Just keep going to Mad Paddle if you are looking for consistent live music in Madison. Owner Jerry Wade is committed to Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and he is working very hard to keep the calendar scheduled, in spite of the many challenges. You should also keep a watchful eye on the Off-Broadway Taproom. They can't always give me an advance schedule for the calendar, but often as not they are getting live shows in there on Saturday nights. Thomas Family Winery, the longest running live music venue in town, is on a winter break, so just watch this column and I'll let you know when they are back up and running. Stay warm, and support live music!

reorganization of Madison City Hall to bring economic development in-house with the city, the group "no longer has much of a role" in that process.

In fact, former JCIDC Director Matt Wirth is now Executive Director of Madison's Economic Development Department with an office in city hall.

Wirth said the non-profit JCDIC has played an important role in the development of a number of local economic partners over the past 25 years but that the city's new Economic Development Department is taking over and continuing that mission so both groups are no longer needed.

"The board does not take this decision lightly," Wirth said. However, at this point JCIDIC's mission runs parallel to the office created by Courtney and the City of Madison.

CABLE

Cable Advisory Board that formerly served in that capacity. Madison TV15 would continue to operate as support to all three government stakeholders but each would also be able to pursue and produce their own programming to stream on the internet or on the cable network's government TV channels.

The fracture surfaced several months ago when Madison Mayor Bob Courtney refused to consider additional funding for the PVSB and TV15 until the PVSB resolved gaps in its operating agreements with the county and municipalities. He said the group had failed to follow through on ordinances pertaining to that agreement and over the years had changed its focus and taken on responsibilities that were probably not part of the original operating agreements or any documentation that was on hand.

Monday night the three-member panel agreed that the PVSB should be scrapped with business reverting back to the Cable Advisory Board, which there are actually ordinances in place to establish, and board membership reduced in number with the three entities taking more control of their content and operating budgets.

The Cable Advisory Board would once again serve as a liaison between the governments and the local cable TV providers to hold the cable companies accountable on quality and content and allow the three government stakeholders to continue collecting cable franchise fees to help fund production of local content and supplement their general funds.

The plan would still fund TV15, which could produce content from meetings and possibly execute an agreement with Indiana PBS to bring more of that content to the channels the Cable Advisory Board schedules content for on both the Metronet and Spectrum cable systems. But the town of Hanover, City of Madison and Jefferson County would be encouraged to invest in their own equipment and staffing to produce their own content for use on their websites, Facebook pages, YouTube as well as the cable TV channels.

"At this stage of the game I'm inclined to (abandon the PVSB) — and I know it feels like throwing in the towel in a way — but the CAB is in existence assuming it was signed off on by both Jefferson County and the Town of Hanover 20 years ago. If it was fully executed and in existence we can move forward under that," Barlett said. "I think we just operate under that agreement and let it be."

He said the three entities would "do away with the Public Video Advisory Board — assuming it's even in any of your ordinances — because it's not functional anyhow."

Courtney, who sat in on the meeting, said the new agreement will allow Madison to "do our thing and you do your thing" so Madison can focus on its live and recorded streaming to educate and inform residents and promote the community within and to a wider audience.

"We want to focus on what we try to do," Courtney said. "At this junction we are at a fork in the road. We've figured out what we want and it's time for Jefferson County and the town of Hanover to figure out what they want."

Bartlett said the city envisions developing a platform that not only reaches local residents but also other viewers who are interested in Madison from around the region and throughout the world.

He said he envisions a CAB that meets as little as once a year to satisfy regulatory requirements pertaining to the local cable providers with the city, town and county each making decisions that impact their content and budgets for that content rather than the CAB. He also noted that he sees cable's reach diminishing as more and more customers migrate from traditional cable TV to streaming services.

The next step for the proposal is to go before the PVSB tonight and then, ultimately, some approval would be needed by the three government entities.

OT buzzer-beater lifts Madison over BNL

David Campbell

Madison's Luke Ommen (14) and Parker Jones (30) celebrate after Ommen hit the game-winner in the Cubs' 54-52 overtime win at Bedford North Lawrence on Tuesday.

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

BEDFORD — Luke Ommen drained a turnaround baseline jumper at the buzzer to lift Madison over Bedford North Lawrence 54-52 in overtime in boys basketball on Tuesday.

Ommen's basket helped erase the pain of Madison blown double-digit lead and allowed the Cubs to open Hoosier Hills Conference play with a win in their final season in the league. And it came in a contest where Madison wasn't at its shooting best, either at the foul line or from the 3-point arc.

The Cubs hit only two of nine 3-pointers attempted in the game and were an ice-cold 10-of-19 from the foul line. But at the end of the game, Madison was celebrating a win and coach Sherron Wilkerson was pleased to see his squad rise to the occasion.

"We overcame it tonight because we guarded and rebounded," Wilkerson said. "It's always tough to win in Bedford and there were several times we let it get away. Coach was upset, but they responded to the challenge."

Madison (8-2, 1-0 HHC) jumped out to a 14-3 lead to open the game but after that quick start, the Cub offense ground to a halt for much of the game and points became harder and harder to come by. Madison still led 27-18 at halftime but Bedford came back to tie the game 38-38 at the end of the third quarter.

The final quarter and the overtime were both played close to the vest as neither team could hold an advantage. Kooper Staley drained a 3-pointer for the Stars with 1:58 to play in regulation to tie the game at 46-46 and the Cubs turned the ball over on their next possession. But a terrific defensive stand by Madison over the final minute left only a desperation shot by the Stars and the game headed to overtime.

Bedford North Lawrence (4-6, 1-1 HHC) briefly took the lead in the overtime on a Colten Leach layup but a Nick Center free throw tied

Bulldogs run wild in 79-54 victory against the Rebels

BY CAMERON ROGERS

NEW ALBANY — Two of Indiana's most historic boys basketball teams matched up for the first time on Tuesday as New Albany hosted Class 2A No. 10 Southwestern. In the first meeting between the two, the Bulldogs dominated the Rebels en route to a 79-54 victory.

From the start, New Albany set the tone as they fed the ball inside to 6-foot-7, 220-pound forward Jordan Thomas. However, being undersized is nothing new for the Rebels, and to coach Zac Nussbaum, that wasn't what stood out.

"They had size on us in every position, but that is nothing new to us. They're a very good team, and I want to give them all the credit. But I was disappointed in how we responded when we got down (by) double digits," Nussbaum said. "We got a lot of senior leaders on this team, and the way we responded was what I was disappointed in."

Southwestern trailed New Albany by two points (15-13) after the first quarter, but the Bulldogs started to pull away in the second quarter as they outscored the Rebels 24-14 to close out the first half.

Southwestern came into the matchup averaging 75.0 points per game but on Tuesday night, the offense wasn't clicking and the Bulldogs held the Rebels to only 54 points.

Austin Kramer led the Southwestern with 15, Foster Mefford added 13, and Zach Cole had 10.

Matthew Williams entered the contest averaging a team-high 18.2 points per game, but the Southwestern big man tallied just five points as he struggled to establish a post game against the lengthy New Albany defense.

Nussbaum touched on the difficulties his team faced on the offensive end.

"When we got down, we started, I call it, 'hero ball,' but we started to one pass, shot, and trying to make a 10-point shot. We stopped moving, and we stopped moving the defense," Nussbaum said. "And when we got the defense to move side to side, we got some really good looks."

Kaden Stanton scored 22 points and Tucker Biven had 21 to lead New Albany, which improved to 7-3 on the season. The Bulldogs outrebounded Southwestern 25-19 while shooting 63% (32-of-51) from the floor. Southwestern was 21-for-44 (48%) shooting on its end.

The Rebels, now 9-2 on the season, will be back in action on Friday as they host Ohio River Valley Conference foe Switzerland County.

The leadership of Southwestern's seniors is what Nussbaum will rely on as the Rebels refocus and try to get back to the top of the ORVC.

"I really believe in these seniors, and they will get this team back focused," Nussbaum said. "They know this is one game, and everyone is disappointed, but that is why you play New Albany, to expose your weaknesses."

Lady Cubs battle No. 1 Silver Creek to the end in 46-38 loss

BY JORDAN BEAR

Madison played hard for 32 minutes but couldn't hold onto an early lead as the Lady Cubs fell to Class 3A No. 1 Silver Creek 46-38 on Tuesday night.

Madison couldn't have asked for a better start to the game with four of its first five made field goals coming from behind the arc, capped by a 4-point play by Jade Nutley which spotted the Cubs a 20-7 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Silver Creek is ranked No. 1 in the state for a reason and thanks to a big quarter from 6-foot-2 senior Marissa Gasaway, the Dragons rallied to cut the Madison lead to 26-23 by the halftime break.

Silver Creek carried that momentum into the third quarter and opened the frame with nine-straight points to take a 32-26 lead they would not relinquish the rest of the game.

Madison had multiple chances in the final quarter to cut the lead to one possession but fell short each time allowing the Dragons to hold on for the 46-38 win.

Madison fought hard and coach Sonja Bowyer knows that the Cubs had their chances in the game and that the outcome could have been much different.

"When you're down four with two minutes to go and have the ball against the best team in the state that could be a huge difference maker," Bowyer said. "We had three or four good looks and we just couldn't get them to go. Who knows? If one of those go, maybe we're still playing."

One issue that hurt Madison was foul trouble to starting point guard Taylor Lynch. Lynch was whistled for two fouls early in the second quarter and picked up her third later in the period which forced Bowyer to send her to the bench early. Lynch then picked up her fourth foul early in the third, once again sending her to the bench.

Lynch, who typically is one of the smartest players on the court, was visibly frustrated, but Bowyer said it's a teaching moment for her.

"I said you're going to learn today. She's such a great player and person but she has to learn when you have fouls you have to be careful and not be careless," Bowyer said. "She plays so hard and so smart but against Silver Creek you have to be that much smarter because they won't let you get away with mistakes."

Nutley finished the game with yet another double-double of 13 points and 10 rebounds to lead the Cubs. Cameran Cahall had nine points, Lundun Perry scored six and Lynch and Daesja Jay each had five.

Kynidi Striverson led Silver Creek with 17 points while Gasaway had 15 points and 10 rebounds.

Madison returns to action on Saturday at Corydon Central for a varsity only game starting at 1 p.m.

the game. Luke Miller hit two free throws with 17 seconds to go to give Madison a 52-50 lead but Staley was fouled on the other end and hit both shots to again tie the game with eight seconds to go.

Opting to go without a timeout, Madison inbounded the ball and immediately went to work. Miller, a senior, brought the ball up the floor and nearly lost it at the 3-point line, before finding Ommen along the baseline to get him the ball. The pass was off target and Ommen was forced to turn his back to the basket in order to get the ball, but he quickly turned and fired over BNL's Jackson Miracle, sinking the shot as the buzzer went off.

"We told them in our last huddle that if (BNL) scores, immediately get the ball and take it to the rim. I didn't call timeout because I kind of thought that if we called timeout they would set their defense," Wilkerson said. "This was one of those situations where we had complete trust in the players. We had a senior with the ball who made the right decision at the end."

David Campbell

Madison's Luke Ommen (with ball) puts up the game-winner over Bedford North Lawrence defender Jackson Miracle (31) during the Cubs' 54-52 overtime win on Tuesday.

Miller finished the game with 21 points to lead all scorers while Center had an impressive double-double of 14 points and 14 rebounds to go with five assists. Ommen scored 12 points and had four rebounds for the Cubs, who shot 47% (21-for-45) overall for the game and had just nine turnovers.

Staley scored 20 points and Leach had 17 to lead Bedford North Lawerence.

Madison now heads to New Albany on Friday to take on a Bulldog squad that the Cubs have not beaten since the 1998-99 season, a span of 21-straight games. New Albany, which stands at 7-3 on the season, appears to be more vulnerable than in recent seasons but as Tuesday's 79-54 win over Class 2A No. 10 Southwestern shows, the Bulldogs are still a very formidable opponent.

Wilkerson knows that Friday's game will serve as a measuring stick for his team which is desperate to show that it belongs among the state's best.

"(Bedford) is a very difficult place to win and this was the shot in the arm that our program needed at this particular time and now we need to capitalize on it," Wilkerson said. "For us, this is a very emotional time. We've been in this conference since the beginning and this is our last go-around. We've talked with the guys about what will our legacy be and we have a chance right now to impact that."

Gratitude lacking

Dear Annie: There are three sisters in my family. Two of us are childless. Our other sister now has seven grandchildren. Every Christmas and birthday, my other childless sister and I send a check to each grandniece and grandnephew. We never expect any gifts in return, but it would be nice to receive a text message or an email acknowledging our gifts. My other childless sister and I also receive regular solicitations to contribute to special funds — for example, one to pay for band uniforms.

Upon any graduation from high school, my other childless sister and I are expected to attend the event and pay for our own airfare, a hotel room, a car rental and other expenses, which is fine. But then we are both expected to work in the kitchen to assist with an elaborate gathering for many people — which I know is very expensive.

My other childless sister feels as if it would be unfair to the younger grandnieces and grandnephews to stop sending checks because we have sent so many checks to the older ones and they are ungrateful. I think that it is time to stop sending checks. Your opinion, please. — Checked Out

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Checked Out: You don't owe anybody anything. Send the younger children greeting cards if you'd like to let them know you're thinking of them on special occasions, but don't include checks. If they get angry, as though they were entitled to your money just because their elder siblings received some, then they needed a lesson in humility more than they needed cash.

Dear Annie: I would like to use you as a sounding board, hoping that my children and old-enough grandchildren might read this and see themselves in the paper.

I have a problem that I'm sure other adults with grown children and grandchildren have when it comes to birthdays, anniversaries, etc. I always make sure that the above-mentioned relatives have presents and cards on their special days. But when it comes to my husband's and my anniversary and birthdays, we get nothing from them.

Heaven forbid that I don't send at least a card their way for every occasion. If I don't send a card for my grandchild, for example, I get a nasty phone call from my daughter, who asks whether I forgot her son's birthday.

I am going to try to start doing the same, calling to ask whether they forgot my birthday or my husband's birthday. I guess I was brought up differently than I raised them. — Upset in Florida

Dear Upset: So many people's manners seem to be going downhill in this department. Just take a look at the previous letter.

I certainly sympathize with you and all the other grandparents, aunts and uncles who consistently show thoughtfulness that younger relatives rarely reflect back. That said, have you tried telling your children you feel this way? They might be all grown up, but there are still lessons you can teach them — such as how no one likes feeling taken for granted, not even parents. And if they don't take that lesson from you, I guarantee they'll learn it firsthand one day.

Dating with autism

Dear Annie: I am a 36-year-old man living with my father. I also have autism, and because of this, I have had difficulty in dating women.

For a few years, I was on the dating website called I Love Your Accent (I had been on 10 other sites prior to that), which matches American and British singles, but nothing happened.

Then, last fall, I downloaded the app UK Social and became friends with a British girl from Birmingham. As it turned out, she was not trustworthy. She asked for money, and I had to end the conversation. My mother got upset and intervened.

Now I am starting a relationship with a girl around here named "Erin." There is a problem: She is somewhat nerdy and has the same condition I have. What should I do? Should I wait for the ideal girl to come around or stay with Erin and see what happens? — Ethan in Hanover

Dear Ethan in Hanover: There's no such thing as an ideal girl. There is only a girl who is ideal — or close enough to ideal — for you. Don't dismiss Erin simply because she's "nerdy." If she's a nerd, that just means she has interests she's passionate about. Strong interests make people interesting. And if you both have autism spectrum disorders, you might find that you understand each other in a unique way. I say give it a try. You don't need to make any major decisions right away, but go on some more dates with Erin and see how you two get along. Good luck.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Recently, you printed a letter from "Betty," who wrote about the death of a friend and how she was treated by family.

I loved her suggestions regarding caring for the dying. Back in 2013, my 92-year-old mother went downhill in a hurry. We called in the angels from hospice, and they talked us into using a hospital bed in a second bedroom. Even though I wished there were some way for her to continue sleeping with my dad, she became too fragile to move.

The day we were warned that her struggle was not to last very long, my dad and I took up a vigil. Most of the time, we were both with her, praying the rosary and talking softly to her, reminiscing about happy times. Shortly after midnight, I needed to take a break and went into the living room with the nurse. Not five minutes later, I heard my dad's chair creak, and by the time I got to the doorway, he was kissing her goodbye. He passed me without a word and went to bed. I sincerely believe she was waiting until she could be alone with him before letting go.

When my dad and I had a chance to talk about it much later, he agreed that he was happy to have had alone time with her. I thought he needed my presence to bring him comfort. I think I should have given him more alone time with her. They had been married for over 73 years, and except for during World War II, they had very rarely spent bedtime away from each other. — Fortunate Daughter

Dear Fortunate Daughter: I believe your letter will touch many hearts, as it certainly touched mine. Thank you for writing.

State police probe homicide near Holton

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Indiana State Police have released the name of a 36-year-old woman who was found dead at a rural Ripley County home near Holton early Tuesday morning.

The woman, positively identified through an autopsy conducted later on Tuesday, is Kristina M. Jones, 36, of Osgood, who was found dead in a residence on County Road 700 West just north of Holton.

Detectives from the Indiana State Police-Versailles Post began investigating the case shortly after midnight on Tuesday when Jones body was found at the residence. Deputies from the Ripley County Sheriffs Office and troopers from the Versailles Post had been dispatched to the residence after receiving reports of an unresponsive female located inside the home. Upon arrival they confirmed that the woman was dead and that injuries she had sustained indicated that she was the victim of a homicide.

The investigation remains ongoing. The victim's family has been notified and no arrests have been made at this time. Anyone with information on the case is asked to call the Indiana State Police-Versailles Post at 812-689-5000.
